

Explore these self-guided driving tours for viewing the largest barn quilt trail in Pennsylvania. Enjoy the quiet serenity of country life meandering through the peaceful back roads of scenic Fulton County. Throughout history, Fulton County was deemed to be the frontier due to its large rugged landscape. As a celebration of all of the county's vast and interesting history and as a cheerful acknowledgement of its rural lifestyle, the Frontier Barn Quilt Trail was started in the summer of 2014 and now includes several driving trails. A detailed driving map is included in this brochure. Take a day trip or a full weekend and enjoy the beauty of this trail!

Cover photo: The Acorn Barn, located at the property of Mike and Linda Crampton. Although the Acorn Barn is not located on The Frontier Barn Quilt Trail (not visible from a public road), it represents Mike Crampton's dedication to starting the barn quilt project in Fulton County. Through Mike's hard work and determination, the trail is now the largest in the state of Pennsylvania.

When the Frontier Barn Quilt Trail was started, its mission was to encourage community participation in the rural culture of the county, educate youth and visitors on the diverse history of the area, celebrate the agricultural economy, honor the quilting tradition, and help in barn preservation by creating a year round tourist attraction. The local community was extraordinarily supportive of this effort and the trail has exceeded original expectations. Many of the quilt blocks are on barns, but some have been installed on houses, sheds, garages, outbuildings and businesses. Blocks are hand drawn and painted by volunteers and high school students from every high school in the county. This trail is constantly expanding and changing. Detailed information on new blocks, as well as the stories behind each block can be found at www.frontierbarnquilttrail.com. Thank you for visiting the largest barn quilt trail in Pennsylvania!
